The country has had a tradition in religion that it is not a matter of doctrine of dogma or rites and ceremonies are instruments which help the human individual to see his God face to face. They point out to us to use Saint Paul's expression, that on the way to it we see as through a glass darkly; when we get out of it, we see Him face to face. The pathway may twist and turn, but when once you reach the top you have the spiritual landscape which is common to all the mystics and seers from whatever direction they approach that quest. Whether you're a Hindu, a Muslim or a Christian, your differences relate to the ways of approach, or forms of address but when once the religious quest is completed, when you're able to reach your goal of completing yourself of integrating your personality from whatever religion you come, you feel that you belong to one common family.

Unit—IV

4. (A) Read the given passage and answer the questions given below : 5

Life and literature are interrelated. Neither Literature nor life can be isolated from each other because life produces literature and is in turn fed by literature. If we want to study literature we will have to study the life of that period. Literature is only one of many channels in which the energy of an age discharges itself in its political movements, religious thoughts, philosophical speculation, art and others forms of expression. Thus study of literature takes us out into the wide field of the history of politics and society, manners and customs, culture and learning, philosophy and religion. Therefore, we find that behind every literary work there is the character of the race. As literature is a product of a society of a particular period, the critics, at the time of evolution, must correlate the literature of that age with all other aspects of national activities, its time, spirit, ideals, the conflicting tendencies, movements reforms, cross currents in other spheres of life and thoughts.
